Ho-Chunk Nation planning energy strategy

Marlon WhiteEagle
Editor

On December 16-19, 2013, the Ho-Chunk Nation held its first Strategic Energy Planning Committee meeting at the Ho-Chunk Gaming Black River Falls Convention Center. The Ho-Chunk Nation received a technical assistance grant from the National Renewable Energy Laboratory (NREL) to develop a Strategic Energy Plan. The three day workshop was hosted by NREL through Kabotie Consulting.

Day one focused on steering tribal leaders to the intent of the meeting and developing tribal priorities. Members of the Ho-Chunk Nation Legislature and various department employees were introduced to NREL points of contact and got an overview of the planning process from Lesley Kabotie, owner of Kabotie Consulting.

Kabotie heard the current tribal reality from tribal leaders and Ho-Chunk Nation employees. Basic information critical to understanding energy development was shared. Kabotie shared trends that could impact tribal energy efforts, advantages of developing a tribal energy plan, and pointed out accomplishments to help move forward.

The Strategic Energy Plan committee brainstormed a tribal energy vision to achieve with ten years. The vision included economic potential, who would be the nation's energy customers, what type of energy would be we deal with, and who are potential partners. The committee also looked at what issues could block the energy plan.

Day two was full of information sharing about and from NREL. The committee got an overview about the programs offered by the U.S. Department of Energy. The committee heard information on tribal specific studies and projects around the U.S. NREL also shared what technical resources were available for tribes. Ho-Chunk Nation leaders shared the current state of our technical resources.

The NREL presentation of their technical resources went from mid morning into mid afternoon. Kabotie facilitated a reflection conversation with the committee about what was presented.

Day three was more reflection and review of information shared by NREL. Kabotie facilitated two sessions in the morning: Data Review and Reflective Conversation on Leveraging Our Vision, and Strategic Use of Resources to Prioritize Our Action. The rest of the morning was a Strategic Direction Workshop about what

The committee discussed what action could happen of the next two years. Lists were created for: priority actions for energy development, the two year focus, and innovative strategies. The committee analyzed and developed the tribal energy plan of action.

Kabotie facilitated an Implementation workshop. The committee discussed what could occur of the next three months. The committee's goal is to build consensus and support for the strategic energy vision. Along with the NREL staff and Kabotie Consulting, the committee created calendars and tasks to begin implementing the strategic energy plan.

One of the main goals was to develop an energy code for the Ho-Chunk Nation. Other goals were to change existing codes and policies and develop new ones to align with and support the energy code. The proposed energy code would look to implement energy efficient strategies and policies through the Ho-Chunk Nation government. Building construction, upgrades, and maintenance would feature energy efficient changes.

Before the closing of the three day workshop, there was another reflective conversation on the planning process. Three workgroups were made and given tasks to move the energy efforts forward. Look for more information in the coming months about energy here in the Hocak Worak.

The Strategic Energy Planning Committee will meet again in January 2014. The committee will also have ongoing meetings with NREL via conference call.

Kabotie Consulting is owned by Paul and Lesley Kabotie. Paul Dearhouse assisted Kabotie Consulting during the workshop. Rachel Sullivan and Karen Petersen from the NREL Communication office were present for the workshop.

Dear Beneficiary and/or Parent/Guardian:

The Ho-Chunk Nation continues to seek a final transfer of minor’s trust funds from Fifth Third Bank to the Nation’s new vendor, Providence Trust. At this point, the funds of minor members are held at both Providence and Fifth Third Bank, and both are Trustees. The Nation and Fifth Third are trying to end their long-standing relationship, but have not yet reached agreement. The Nation is still in the process of replacing Fifth Third Bank completely. At the same time, the Nation is pursuing other options to have the actions of Fifth Third reviewed by outside entities.

All funds of minor members should still be in place at Fifth Third and Providence. If there is a concern that funds are missing, or either of the Trustees have no record of the funds, please notify the Legislature. You may also contact Clint Breed, Legislative Financial Examiner at 715-284-9343 ext 1313 or by email at clint.breed@ho-chunk.com.

Each year you have received a Schedule K-1 from the Ho-Chunk Children’s Trust Fund that contains your tax information. The Schedule K-1 is the part of the tax return that indicates to you and to the IRS the amounts of taxable income you must include on your 2013 income tax return.

This year you will receive two Schedules and both will have taxable income that you must include on your 2013 income tax return. One Schedule K-1 will come from Providence First Trust Company, as the new trustee for the Trust, and the other Schedule K-1 will come from Fifth Third Bank (the old trustee for the Trust). When you receive the two Schedules you should take them both to your income tax return preparer.

Please note that the information needed to compile the K-1 is not due to the Trustees until February 15th. The Trustees then use that information to generate the individual K-1 statements. This process may take several weeks so you should not anticipate receiving the K-1 in the mail until the end of February or the beginning of March.

Please keep in mind that the Schedule K-1 is not an indication of the market performance of your investments. The Schedule K-1 only indicates taxable income under IRS rules and laws.

If you have any questions regarding your account at Fifth Third, you should call their Grand Rapids toll-free number at 800-950-7521. That is the number listed on all mailings, and the team that handles it has access to the minors’ records. There are only a certain number of individuals within the bank that have authority to deal with the trust.

If you have any questions regarding your account at Providence Trust, you should call Stephen Fuller at 602-952-2300 or he may be reached by email at sf@providencefirst.com. This number should also be listed on mailing received from Providence.

Thank you for your patience.

The past is the present...Our generations merge

Submitted by Lizette Goucher

When I’m in the halls or in a different class, I get looked at differently. Why? Because of my heritage, my skin color. Many people don’t live the way I do. They don’t and/or wouldn’t understand our ways. When I say “our” I mean the Hoocąk people. Through the past many years our number has dropped. With the number went our speakers. Our elders in whom we learned our ways and our language. In this generation there are fewer than 100 speakers, out of 7,000 hoocąk members.

Not many people really pay attention to the past of the hoocąk people, but that does not mean we don’t have one. When the first groups of “white man” came to our land we were pushed, or moved off our land. Our numbers were great, and it seems the white man was threatened by that. So they stripped away the children, and tried to break them down. Teach them the ways of the white man, and punish us when we spoke the only language we knew. Going about the only ways we knew, we were punished again. The clothes in which were made for us, taken away and given government issued clothes. Along with all this, most of the children never seen their families again. For some it got even worse.

We have our own historical trauma. We have suffered the loss of our language, culture, way of life, religion and family structure (forcing into the boarding schools). The meaning of historical trauma is a combo of immense losses and traumatic event that are perpetrated upon an entire culture. THAT is what has happened to the hoocąk people, and more. The suffering and pain our ancestors have touched this generation and it will touch the generations to come. The past will never change, but we can change our future. The culture and the ways of life for the hoocąk people don’t have to change, but they could use a boost in active members. The language could be spoken more.

Why is learning hoocąk important to me? Learning hoocąk is important to me because when the language dies so does the culture. The people no longer have anything but a name. The meaning has faded, along with the language. I want to be able to speak to my children; and them to talk among each other. I want their grandparents to talk and them to sit and listen, understand what they are saying. To have the respect for their elders the way I do.

To show the world their more than just a name, they are Hoocąks. We are Hoocąks.

So I’m pretty sure from all that, you can somewhat understand the why we are the way we are. Why learning hoocąk is a “big deal”. We aren’t just learning the language; we’re doing our part in contributing to keeping our culture alive. We aren’t just learning, we’re teaching, sharing, and exchanging.

Dear Editor

I am a parent of a Ho-Chunk child, through my addiction to meth I was not able to give my son the care that he had to have. In the end I ended up with a 15 year sentence for possession of a firearm.

While in jail waiting to be sentenced in federal court my father died, my grandmother died and I lost parental rights to my son, but not without going to court and trying to at least keep some kind of rights so I can at least have contact with him. My attorney sent me a letter that if I will just give up my rights then my son will be allowed to correspond with me but no calls or visitation. But if I make him go through court then he will not allow any contact whatsoever. I could not and did not agree to those terms and my son has held true to his word as he has not allowed any contact with me or my mother who is well established in her community and hasn’t even gotten a traffic ticket in her life (I still have the letter from my attorney).

Even though I was on meth and couldn’t overcome my addiction before it cost me everything except my life. I am still a parent who loves his child very much. I wake up every morning and the first thing I think of is how I am missing my son’s life. I can’t even watch him grow into a young man as I receive no pictures or anything of him and that really hurts. I hope he doesn’t grow up hating me and one day I hope that will be able to tell him that I love him again. Many days I have thought about giving up in here but the thought of my son always makes me smile and sometime cry.

Addiction affects a lot of parents, some are able to overcome their addiction and some cannot. I was one of the ones who could not, with much regret and pain that I will suffer for many years if not a lifetime.

As for my son I don’t understand why he will not allow me or at least my mother some contact, but I am grateful that he is being taken care of.

*Sincerely,
Robert Hastings*

Correction from Ho-Chunk Nation honors seven code talkers in Vol. XXVII, Issue 24, on December 27, 2013
Greg Littlejohn was pictured and accepted the Silver medal on behalf of Howard Littlejohn, not Elliot Littlejohn, and Myrle Thompson was not station in Korea, but served during the Korean War.

In a 12 month period, the Ho-Chunk Nation's Health Department scheduled nearly 21,000 appointments. But 15.2 percent of them were not kept, costing about $2.4 million in excess costs and lost revenue.

No-shows are costly. Based on average revenue per encounter, each no-show represents about $755.00 in lost revenue that would normally go to help cover the cost of care.

No-shows
Kept appointments

Note--a "no-show" is when a person has a scheduled appointment and is unable to keep it but does not call to cancel the appointment time, preventing another person from being able to use the appointment.

If you have an appointment you are unable to keep, please call and cancel it as soon as possible--even after hours; follow the automated menu and just leave a message. We'll do our best to make a new appointment that works for you and we may be able to provide an appointment to someone else.

New Year's resolution to donate blood regularly can help patients in need

Submitted by Brian Gomez, American Red Cross

With a new year come many resolutions to form good habits and achieve personal goals. The American Red Cross encourages those who are eligible to resolve to help patients in need through regular blood donations.

Donated blood can give patients in need more time with loved ones. Blood can be used to treat cancer patients, trauma victims, organ transplant recipients, premature babies, sickle cell disease patients and others. In fact, about every two seconds, a patient in the U.S. needs a blood transfusion.

As winter continues, blood donations are especially needed, with many donors unable to give due to inclement weather and seasonal illnesses. Make an appointment to donate blood and partake in a lifesaving resolution by visiting redcrossblood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS.

Fitness membership program makes it easy to stay in shape

Ken Luchterhand
Staff Writer

Most New Year’s resolutions are usually concerning losing weight, or getting into shape.

Those resolutions are good ones, because they usually make the person healthier and live longer. But unfortunately, most of those resolutions fall by the wayside a few weeks into the year.

Ho-Chunk Nation Diabetes Project Coordinator Karena Thundercloud said there’s an easy way to keep your commitment: by obtaining a fitness membership.

“The prevalence rate for diabetes in the Ho-Chunk Nation is high – about 25 percent. In a community health assessment taken in 2011, it showed a youth obesity rate of 42 percent,” Thundercloud said. “By exercising, a person can avoid or delay diabetes. The physical act of exercising brings sugar, or glucose, levels down.”

The Ho-Chunk Nation is offering to pay for fitness memberships for any tribal member, no matter where he or she lives in the United States. A small co-pay is required the first six months, and the amount after that depends on usage. A single individual’s co-pay is $20 and a family’s co-pay is $30.

After the first six months, the co-pay will be determined based on the frequency of use. The more a person attends a YMCA or gym, the lower the co-payment. The less a person uses it, the more the copayment, thus encouraging people to get out and be active.

There is a short history to the idea of making exercise available to Ho-Chunk members, Thundercloud said. A couple years ago, some representatives of an Area approached the Ho-Chunk Legislature and wanted to pay for fitness memberships for all members of that area. The tab came to about $35,000, and some used the opportunity to exercise and work out, and other people did not at all.

Representatives from another area wished to have similar access to fitness facilities, but instead of paying for everyone, the Legislature required a list of people who were interested.

Because of the inconsistency of no guidelines of such programs, the Legislature asked the members of the Diabetes Program to run and regulate a fitness membership program, since they were the best equipped to do so.

For any looking to obtain a fitness membership, YMCAs are the first choice of the program.

“YMCAs are more family oriented,” Thundercloud said. “They have open gym, basketball, swimming pools, Getting into shape is always a good idea, as these young ladies already know. Working out on the treadmills and elliptical exercise machine are (from left) Hannah Myers, Fiona Fay, Marlene Gamroth and Stacie Allen.

racquetball, and classes like Zumba, Yoga and Jazzercise. They offer a lot of options, not just exercise equipment.”

Where YMCAs are not available, other gyms and fitness center memberships are acceptable, such as Curves or 24/7 Fitness or the Lunda Center.

“A lot of YMCAs offer pre-diabetes education, which we do not at the present time,” Thundercloud said. “The instructors of that program are willing to come out an area to put on a class for us.”

Although the Diabetes Program is making a push now to get Ho-Chunk members into the fitness program, it actually started in July. So far, 129 people or families have taken advantage of the program.

To enroll, an application must be completed and returned to the Ho-Chunk Nation Diabetes staff. For guidelines and application, contact Lyndsey Owen at (715) 284-9851 Ext. 5068 or by email at lyndsey.owen@ho-chunk.com or Karena Thundercloud at (715) 284-9851 Ext. 5385 or email at karena.thundercloud@ho-chunk.com.

Ho-Chunk Nation Pediatric Mobile Health Clinic

Submitted by Bethany Schilling, FNP Nurse Practitioner-HHCC

After several months of planning and preparation, the Pediatric Mobile Health Clinic program is ready to hit the road to provide some much anticipated health care services to children in the outlying areas which we will be serving: Wittenberg, Nekoosa, Tomah, and La Crosse. The Mobile Health Clinic is essentially a medical clinic on wheels complete with exam rooms, nurse's station, medical and lab equipment, and waiting area.

During the month of January you may see us as we travel to each of the outlying locations for our first visits: Wednesday, January 8th in La Crosse, Wednesday, January 15th in Wittenberg, Wednesday, January 22nd in Tomah, and Thursday, January 30th in Nekoosa. This month we will be seeing a limited number of patients and getting familiar with each location.

Beginning the month of February 2014 the Pediatric Mobile Health Clinic will be open to taking scheduled appointments. We will be traveling to each location once each month, usually on the same day the Food Distribution Program is in each area. As we determine the need for pediatric services in each area, we plan to grow the program and add clinic days in areas as necessary. This is the anticipated monthly schedule:

La Crosse:
1st Wednesday – 10:00am-3:00pm, Ni Tani Hocira/Three Rivers House, 724 Main Street. La Crosse, WI 54601

Wittenberg:
2nd Wednesday – 10:00am-3:00pm, Paccinak/Community Center, N7240 U.S. Hwy 45, Wittenberg, WI

Tomah:
3rd Wednesday – 10:00am-3:00pm, Ahu co/Blue Wing Community Center, 310 Epinal Ave, Tomah, WI

Nekoosa:
4th Thursday – 10:00am-3:00pm, Cex Haci, 4960 Creamery Road, Nekoosa, WI

*To schedule an appointment please call (715) 284-9851, or 1-888-685-4422.

The Pediatric Mobile Clinic provides services to Ho-Chunk and Native children ages 0-19 including well-child exams, sport physicals, sick child visits, immunizations, vision and hearing screening, lab tests, specialist referrals, prescriptions, and patient education. We are not able to provide emergency care, x-rays, dental care, or adult visits. There will be assistance available to help qualified families apply for obtainable insurance coverage. Insurance will be billed for services; otherwise services are provided to all Ho-Chunk and native tribal members the same as existing Ho-Chunk Nation clinics.

The Department of Health is very excited to be able to offer this program to bring health care to the children in our service areas. The team of healthcare professionals including a family nurse practitioner, medical assistant, and driver/patient registration strives to provide high quality, respectful, holistic care with a focus on preventive services and improving the health of children and their families. The provider works together with the patient and family to educate and encourage taking an active role in achieving and maintaining good health. We look forward to serving patients and collaborating with community partners in each of the service areas in the coming months.

Bethany Schilling, FNP, and Victoria Matias, Medical Assistant will be coming to various areas monthly.

Children can receive well child check-ups, physicals, have lab work done.

Children's Health Fund, their logo is seen on the wall, sponsored the mobile health unit.

Submitted by Sherman Funmaker, Senior Manager Public Relations, Ho-Chunk Gaming Wis. Dells

On New Year's Eve 2013 Ho-Chunk Gaming Wisconsin Dells along with Badger Honor Flight volunteers sold wrist bands that allowed entry to the 3 music acts that performed on New Year's Eve in the Ho-Chunk Hotels Upper and Lower Dells Ballrooms. Along with Madison County, the bands Spin and Lube also entertained the large crowd that gathered to ring in 2014.

Badger Honor Flight is a hub of the national Honor Flight Network, a volunteer organization created solely to honor America's veterans for all their sacrifices. They raise funds to transport military veterans to Washington, D.C. to give them the opportunity to visit and reflect at their memorials. Top priority is given to the most senior veterans World War II survivors along with any terminally ill veteran. Veterans from other conflicts, such as the Korean and Vietnam Wars, are included in our program and are given priority.

This is the second year that Ho-Chunk Gaming Wisconsin Dells along with the other Ho-Chunk Gaming facilities were able to help raise money for this group of dedicated volunteers.

All told, the gaming sites were able to raise $46,000.00 in 2013 to help send these veterans to our nation's capitol this coming year.

The Ho-Chunk people have a proud history with the U.S. military and we are proud of our veterans that served during these conflicts. Supporting such programs are our privilege.

Myrle Thompson provides thank-you meal

Ken Luchterhand
Staff Writer

Veteran Myrle Thompson, Ho-Chunk member, provided a free meal on Thursday, December 19, at the Tribal Office Building, to all members and employees of the Ho-Chunk Nation.

It was her way of saying thank you to the Ho-Chunk Nation allowing her to go on the Badger Honor Flight on October 19. The program flew Thompson and many other veterans to Washington, D.C. to see the nation's memorials to World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

Thompson is a veteran of the Korean War, having served in the U.S. Air Force.

Most, if not all, of the World War II veterans who were able to go have been to Washington, D.C. in the past. Now the program is sending veterans of the Korean War.

At the meal, Thompson had several tables displaying her memorabilia from her time in the Air Force. Singers provided music after the meal in dedication to her service to the country.

Ho-Chunk Nation gives a thoughtful donation to Wittenberg Birnamwood High School

On Monday, January 13, 2014, the Ho-Chunk Nation has made a $4,800 donation to the Wittenberg Birnamwood High School Football Stadium Restoration Project. The donation was giving to the school's Superintendent Garrett Rogowski and Jill Sharp, Principle of WBHS by representatives of the Ho-Chunk Nation, Heather Cloud, Vice President of the Ho-Chunk Nation, Darren Brinegar, District 3 Legislator and Danee Walker, the District 3 Legislative Aide for the Ho-Chunk Nation.

On August 12, 2013, the Shawano County Tribal Affairs Committee made a request for assistance at the Ho-Chunk Nation's District 3 Wittenberg area meeting because the committee saw that there was a need of repairs to the stadium at Wittenberg-Birnamwood High school. A District 3 Wittenberg tribal member motioned to approve the request from Shawano County during their meeting then was later approved by the Ho-Chunk Nation's Legislative Branch.

The Ho-Chunk Nation gave the school a wonderful donation because the Nation knew that there was some repairing needed to be done. Members of the Ho-Chunk Nation thought it would be very beneficial to the Ho-Chunk students that attend WBHS by giving them better stadium. Garrett Rogowski, superintendent at WBHS mentioned how appreciative they are with the partnership and relationship with the Ho-Chunk Nation.

With the donation that was giving to the WBHS (Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School), many students will benefit from it. The Ho-Chunk Nation has donated to school districts in many projects as a way of enriching the lives of the Ho-Chunk students.

The District 11 Jackson County covers City Point 182, 4th Ward Brockway 421 and Komen-sky 509. Rockman received a Master of Science Degree in Human & Community Resources in 1995 and also a Bachelor of Science Degree in Sociology Social Work emphasis in 1991. Rockman is currently the Director of Planning and Development since July 2003. Throughout the years, Rockman has gained a huge amount of knowledge on social aspects of Native Americans and the social issues, etc.

Rockman has many reasons why she is running for The District 11 Jackson County Board of Supervisors. One main reason for running is her concern regarding the potential environmental hazards to the county's environment health and physical health because sand mining. Rockman was asked "What is her long term goal?" Rockman responded with "I want Jackson County to be environmentally clean for the tourist, and for the county residents. Rockman's long term goal is maintaining Jackson County. Rockman's fear is the potential tourist decrease because of potential environment damage. In order to avoid the tourist population decrease, Rockman would like to see the waters in the lakes clean for the locals and for the tourist, also, wants to make sure that there's fresh, clean air to breath by making sure that the county's environment is clean.

As of right now, Rockman

Rockman will see both sides and not just only one side. Once again the election for The District 11 Jackson County Board of Supervisors will be held on April 1, 2014. Good luck to Carol Rockman!

Chris Danou's Capitol Report Resolutions for Wisconsin in 2014

WI State Representative
Chris Danou

With the New Year underway, I know many folks have are working towards a resolution in their personal life. Resolutions are common this time of year and they help people focus on a specific plan to achieve what they deem to be a necessary, long-term goal. Most often those goals are related to health, financial well-being, furthering their education, improving a relationship with someone or paying off debt. In a lot of ways personal resolutions reflect what our state government should try to achieve this year.

With only a few months left of the current legislative session, it is my hope that the Governor and the Republican majority make the most of our time precious time. This has been one of the shortest sessions in decades and it's perhaps fair to say we haven't seen the vision or necessary action Wisconsin needs to move forward.

The vision for our state has been short-sighted and I think the legislative action we have seen prove just that. After all, the first and most significant piece of legislation the Republicans introduced made it easier for one out-of-state mining company to set up operations in Northern Wisconsin. I know the Governor needs to achieve his campaign promise of creating 250,000 new jobs, but relying on natural resource extraction is not the long-term or silver bullet solution Wisconsin needs.

Aside from creating jobs in Wisconsin, we need to make a resolution and work to become healthier in our state. It's very clear that the health of people in communities across Wisconsin needs to improve, not only to provide a better quality of life, but also to save money over the long-term.

Health care is changing in this country and some states like Minnesota are embracing the change. Minnesota accepted the federal health care money through the Affordable Care Act and is working toward rapid and effective implementation. Under the leadership of Gov. Walker, Wisconsin said 'no' to accepting federal money that not only would have expanded coverage for 85,000 people, but it would also make coverage cheaper. Wisconsin missed out on the chance to save $86 million and as a result taxpayers will pay more for less coverage. I firmly believe we should aim to make people healthier and save money versus making coverage more difficult and expensive.

We have seen the income disparity grow to unprecedented levels and there are really no signs of stopping. Wall Street is breaking records and Main Street is struggling to make ends meet. In order for our economy to properly grow, we need to have a strong middle-class who can afford to directly participate by purchasing goods and services.

One way to help the middle-class grow and participate in the economy is to increase the minimum wage. How can we honestly expect someone to effectively participate in the economy when they earn $7.25/hour? By paying someone such a low wage, big business makes a huge profit and the taxpayers foot the bill through anti-poverty programs, such as food stamps. If the minimum wage had kept up with the rate of inflation since 1968, the minimum wage would be $10.74/hour versus the current rate of $7.25/hour. Those additional 3+ dollars an hour would allow people to have a more active role in contributing to the economy while saving taxpayer money.

Ho-Chunk Nation donates $20,000 to Salvation Army

Ken Luchterhand
Staff Writer

The Ho-Chunk Nation presented a check for $20,000 to the Salvation Army of La Crosse on Monday, January 13.

With the check, the Salvation Army has exceeded its $650,000 goal for its Red Kettle Campaign, bringing their current total to more than $675,000.

Legislators Henning Garvin and David Greendeer presented the check to Shelter Director Major Dr. Paul Moore, Development Director Julie Nelson, and Chair of the Advisory Board Sister Georgia Christensen FSPA.

"We are especially appreciative because this is the money that funds the shelter for the entire year," Moore said.

He said the money goes towards everything from the shelter to feeding and disaster programs.

"Without the funds we can't operate, without operating we can't run a shelter, without a shelter there are people that would end up on the streets," said Moore.

With the Three Rivers House on the end of the block and across the street, the Ho-Chunk Nation and the Salvation Army has had a good working relationship through the years, Garvin said.

"Perry Carrimon has directed numerous cases of help for tribal members to the Salvation Army," Garvin said. "Many tribal members have been directed there for shelter, food, or help finding a job."

Carrimon is the general manager of the Three Rivers House.

"The people needing help haven't been just Ho-Chunk, but relatives of them and members of other tribes as well," Greendeer said.

This is the first donation by the Ho-Chunk Nation to the Salvation Army.

What makes it even more important is that it was part of the "matching funds" kettle drive, meaning it doubles what was donated from the public.

"That shows how powerful this is," Moore said. "People in the community gave more money because of the matching funds. It was a wonderful incentive."

Because of the downturn in the economy, many people have needed the services the Salvation Army offers. Each year has seen a greater need for housing and food. Fortunately, the need for shelter had reached a plateau. However, the need is still greater than what was originally planned for the facility.

This building was originally designed to house 38 people," Moore said. "We now have 83."

Also, there is a great demand for meals, which is provided to people staying in the shelter plus people living elsewhere who show up to eat.

"Last month we served 8,600 meals," Christensen said. "And also we offer food to people through our food pantry. The biggest demand is through the Wafer Program, but we still have people who come to us."

Another service the Salvation Army provides is a means to get back out into the community, meaning the staff finds available housing and jobs for people in need.

"The Thrift Store really helps with that. It all goes together," Christensen said. The Thrift Store is a resale shop which provides income for the shelter and its services.

The three lend their experience to the running of the shelter, having been with the Salvation Army for a number of years. Moore been with Salvation Army for 34 years, with two and a half in La Crosse, Nelson has been with the Salvation Army for four years and Christensen has been with Salvation Army for seven years.

Previously, because of funding shortfalls, two staff positions were eliminated at the Salvation Army. Now they will be able to bring at least one staff position back, and Garvin said they're glad to extend a hand.

"The Salvation Army serves an important role here in the La Crosse area and for the community, a lot of people need assistance for a multitude of different reasons, including our own tribal members," Garvin said.

Kelly Greengrass likes people to feel better about themselves.

That's why she has started impromptu exercise classes at the District One Community Center.

Ever since early November, she has been providing exercise to anyone who shows up.

"It started with just one person, but now I have as many as eight people in a session," Greengrass said.

People gather for the classes at lunchtime, plus some evenings and weekends.

Kelly sets up different exercise stations around the gym area, and then has each participant at a station for a designated time. At the end of that time, she has everyone switch to another station.

In the beginning, she and Chandra weighed in so they could measure their success.

"We lost inches, but more importantly, we gained muscle," Kelly said.

"I do it because I'm helping people," she said. "I see a need for it in the community."

She allows people to work out at their own pace, plus she makes allowances if certain physical problems exist.

"For instance, if someone has bad knees, I will adjust the exercises to allow for that," she said. "Also, if anyone gets tired, they can just take a break during the classes."

She has been offering the fitness classes every day, but she may need to cut back on the number of classes due to increase demands on her time.

For people wishing to join her classes, they can just show

"The more people, the merrier," she said.

Indirect Cost Rate (IDC) Rate Change – Sandy Gleason Ms. Sandy Gleason, Finance Department, explained that there were several meetings to address the Indirect Cost and budget impacts. Mr. Clint Breed explained the different Indirect Cost Rate amounts. Legislature could reduce to zero (0) or leave as is (5.29%) or boost to 14.73%. A zero (0) rate could be used. Indirect Cost Rate just moves money around. Originally it was to collect money from grant sources. Why would we charge ourselves? If we go to zero there is no issue for upcoming budgets. MOTION by Rep. USDA Urges Voters to Participate in FSA County Committee Elections

January 17, 2014 Deadline for Submitting Ballots Nears

Submitted by Julie Dokkestul, Jackson County FSA

Julie Dokkestul, Jackson County Executive Director of USDA's Farm Service Agency urges farmers and other agricultural producers to vote in the FSA county committee election by January 17, 2014, the deadline for casting ballots.

“FSA county committees provide producers with the opportunity to help implement federal farm programs in our communities,” said Dokkestul. “It is important that all farmers, especially women and minorities, participate in the election process to ensure the opinions expressed in committee meetings reflect Jackson County’s agricultural needs and concerns.”

Producers must return ballots to the Jackson County FSA offices by the close of business on January 17. Newly elected committee members and alternates take office February 18, 2014.

FSA county committees consist of three elected members who help administer federal farm programs at the local level. Committees make decisions on commodity price support programs; conservation programs; incentive indemnity and disaster programs for some commodities; emergency programs and eligibility, and other agricultural issues.

Davids advances on martial arts career while developing Hoka! coffee business

Ken Luchterhand
Staff Writer

Sharice Davids has two passions in her life: Mixed Martial Arts fighting and coffee. She loves both of them so dearly; she can't choose which one she loves more. So she doesn't choose – she enjoys both. Davids, a Ho-Chunk tribal member, is now a professional MMA (Mixed Martial Arts) fighter and she also owns and operates her own coffee company named Hoka. She presently lives on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota. But the tale of two passions doesn't have her divided when it comes to choosing one over the other – she makes time for both.

“My priority is by enjoyment – by passion,” Davids said. “I’ve been working out (exercising) so long, it has become part of everyday life. “And I do love coffee,” she said. “I wanted to do something to do with economic development for the reservation. It was something my friends and I have been talking about for some time.”

When she was younger, she had an entrepreneurial mindset plus she was obsessed with martial arts icon Bruce Lee, two interests that have stayed with her to this day.

“But, back then, I didn’t get a chance to train,” she said. “My mom was a single mother, raising the three of us. So, it was cost prohibitive.”

“When I was young we moved around quite a bit but ended up in the Kansas City area after my mom, Crystal Herriage, retired from the Army. During all that time I lived with my whole family, my mom, my two brothers (Matthew and Joshua) and my Aunt Ali and her daughter and my sister (Indian way) Megan. My mom was a single parent raising the three of us, I think she did a great job.”

Her mother was in the Army when she was born so that was all she knew for the first 18 years of her life.

“She was stationed in Germany when I was born, which is always funny to tell people - yes, I’m an Indian (Native American depending on who I am talking to) who was born in Germany,” Davids said. But don’t worry I can still be President (Ho-Chunk or USA) if I wanted to do that. My grandmother was Ruth Stacy and my grandfather was Lawrence Littlegeorge.”

Later in her life, at age 20, Davids began studying capoeira, a Brazilian martial art that is based on dance and music which involves kicks, punches, acrobatics, leg sweeps, knee and elbow strikes, and take downs.

Hoka! Coffee is available online and through many stores throughout the United States. The Ho-Chunk Nation Business Department is considering selling the coffee at its Whitetail Crossing outlets.

an accountant, but then switched to business classes when she found that she enjoyed them more. She earned her undergraduate degree there before moving on to Law School at Cornell University, where she earned a law degree in 2010.

“Seems like I moved around a lot,” she said. “Right now I am living in Porcupine, South Dakota on the Pine Ridge Reservation. I came here with my partner, Alicia, who is an Oglala Lakota. When she finished her Ph.D. program in Clinical Psychology she really wanted to come home. Alicia provides a lot of support in my life. My mom and my brothers are also a huge support system for me, even though they are geographically far away, because they are still in Kansas City. I don’t get to see them as much as I would like but we are all pretty close. Then of course my Aunt and Megan are always in contact.

“The only downside to living way out here is that I have to travel a long way whenever I have a fight or for high-level training,” she said.

“I have been really lucky and have had the chance to get a great foundation of martial arts when I was in Kansas City from John Brown at Revolution Gym, on our fight team, Fight University. When I moved to Pine Ridge I started training with David Michaud, who is an awesome wrestling coach. He has also had a lot of experience training and coaching fighters, his son is Bulldawg Michaud, a pretty well known Indian fighter,” Davids said.

“John Brown in Kansas City was the first person to say - you should do an MMA fight,” she said. “I was taking his Tae Kwon Do and fitness classes and he thought I really would like it - he was right. I enjoyed putting in the hours at the gym and once I saw the technique that really goes in to MMA I was hooked. I had my first fight in 2006 and I have been training primarily MMA since then.”

Davids was considered amateur until recently, when she had her first professional MMA fight. She won her debut fight against Nadia Nixon via submission using a maneuver called a “leg triangle.”

Now, she’s hoping to be slated for her second professional fight on March 1, and getting ready for an audition fight for a slot on the TV series “The Ultimate Fighter” in April.

Starting this month, she is allocating time to get ready for the fight. She’s also getting ready to try out for the available slots on the television series.

“There aren’t that many women fighters in my weight class, so fights are hard to come by” she said. Her fight weight is 118 pounds.

But the other facet of her passion has a deeply-rooted place in her life, as well: her business, Hoka! Coffee.

“I made a list of things I am passionate about and there were just a few things on it – economic development in Indian Country, martial arts and coffee. I had thought wouldn’t it be amazing to have a roasting facility on the reservation so we can have our own coffee here. I found a way to combine two of the three things I am passionate about. Now I just need to figure out how to add martial arts into Hoka! Coffee,” she said.

“I had been working on an economic development initiative at Red Cloud Indian School for a about a year and recently thought - the reservation should have a coffee roaster. I love coffee and I have always been very entrepreneurial so I started down the path of developing the coffee idea,” Davids said.

“I would call Hoka! a total success so far. It is really amazing to see the amount of support people have for Hoka! Coffee.

“Right now, we are working with a very well-regarded and award-winning roastmaster from Boulder, Colorado. He is very excited to help us get a roasting facility on the reservation. He and I met a number of times to determine if we were both on the same page and to see whether we would work well together. I approached him because of the community building and economic building his company has done in many South American coffee growing countries,” Davids said.

“He is someone I really wanted to work with because he had experience in the type of growth I want to have on the Reservation,” she said. “Many times in the South American countries where we (people in the U.S.) get our coffee from, the farmers are indigenous people who have a plot of land and the perfect conditions to grow great coffee but they lack some of the infrastructure and support to get their product to people who would really love to buy it. Sometimes I think we have that in Indian Country. We have a lot to offer, in terms of products, services and ideas but we don’t always have the infrastructure to really demonstrate that to people.”

In general, Davids wants the coffee business to provide jobs and economic opportunity for the people who live on Pine Ridge Reservation.

“The people who have jobs because of Hoka! can contribute to the economy on the reservation and Hoka! is trying to purchase as much as we can from local businesses, such as using Lakota Art Studio for our t-shirts and tote bags. We want to provide an excellent product, meaning beans that are top quality, fresh, all organic and fair trade. We also want to provide excellent customer service,” she said.

Right now, the business is in the start-up phase, so a lot of the day to day operations of the business involves things like evaluating our packaging, trying to figure out the best way to communicate what the company is about and figuring out who to target for sales, she said. Some of the other jobs is mail out our online orders and communicate with the people who contact them.

“I love what I do. I am going pro for MMA, I run a coffee company, and I am a corporate lawyer. Somehow I am putting these things together. Day to day sometimes I get really tired but I love all this stuff so it doesn’t feel like a lot of work - it’s just progress,” she said.
